She lives with her birds in California. White Snake and Other Stories by Yan GelingšA The title story of this collection of stories by Yan Geling features a lesbian reticulation of the classic white snake legend in Chinese folklore. Amended in the book are allegorical vignettes about crocodile people who are exiled and adopted in society. This novel is observant and bizarre and humorous, completely unique in its narrative structure. Notes of a Crocodile by Qiu Miaojin, translated by Bonnie Huie Qiu Miaojin is an iconic Taiwanese lesbian writer, and his new notes of a crocodile is a brutal and beautiful book. There is an immediacy and poetry to all of Qiu Miaojin's writing, and this novel is unlike anything I have ever read. K-Ming Chang is a fellow Kundiman, a lambda literary prize finalist, and a national book foundation of 5 children under the age of 35. It's the kind of book that seems to be swallowing you all up with its language and characters and self-destructive voice. I immersed myself in the process of translation as inevitable change and alchemy, and was especially drawn to translation novels about queer life in Taiwan and China that explored the themes that compel me to write: exile, tenderness, violence, queerness as possibility and transformation . Yan Geling's writing is fluid, seamless and beautifully discreet at many times, and the white legend of snake has always had shades of underground that one brings to the surface. Crystal Boys by Pai Hsien-Yung Published in 1983, Crystal Boys is often credited as the first gay novel written in Chinese. Photo by Andrew Read in Unsplash Before writing my new debut Bestiria, I started a translation year process written by my grandmother, many of the were addressed to people I didn't know. This classic novel draws from bildungsroman traditions, but it's also formally innovative and regenerative, incorporating diary entries, scripts, vignettes, and obsessive monologues.šA šA Beijing Comrades translated by Scott E Myers Written anonymously and posted online, Beijing Comrades is an all-consuming novel that features one of the most frustrating narrators I've ever encountered. Mu CaošAšA's innovative, non-linear novel follows Ah-Qing, a migrant worker from Henan Province who leaves his village in order to work in the city. The story switches between different narrative voices but is cohesive in its gorgeous, subtle use of language.šA šA Angelwings: Contemporary Queer Fiction from Taiwan translated by Fran Martin This anthology of queer fiction from contemporary Taiwan is an endless offering. Qiu MiaojinšAšA's work is brimming with emotional intensity, self-obsession, and desire. Featuring iconic women writers such as TešAšAien-Wen Chu and Qiu Miaojin, this anthology features a broad spectrum of styles and themes that incorporates mythology, religion, and daily life, and it'sšAšA's worth reading for Qiu MiaojinšAšA's story šAšAšAPlatonic Hair.šAšAšA Last Words from Montmartre by Qiu Miaojin This innovative, visceral novel is written in letters and vignettes that can be read in any order. Set in late 1980s Beijing, the novel follows Handong, a seemingly cold-hearted businessman who picks up Lan Yu, a university student newly arrived to Beijing from Xinjiang. In 2021, her chapbook, Bone House, was published by Bull City Press. She is the author of Bestiary (One World/Random House, 2020), which was longlisted for the Center for Fiction First Novel Prize and the PEN/Faulkner Award. This novelšAšAšAwhich feels also like an archive and artifact of a destructive relationshipšAšAšAis akin to being consumed by your own psyche and appetite. The genre of tongzhi wenxue, or queer fiction, became prominent in Taiwanese literature during the 1990s. Lan Yu is vulnerable, naive, and sometimes elusive, while Handong can be incredibly cruel and obtuse. It highlights the cyclical nature of generational violence and the enduring love between friends. Set during the period of martial law in Taiwan, the book follows Ah-Qing, a young Taiwanese man who is brutally exiled from his fathersšAšA's home after being caught having a romantic tryst with a fellow student. The novel follows Lazi, a young Taiwanese lesbian who falls in and out of love with an older woman in the most all-consuming ways. While attempting these translations, I realized the impossibilities and possibilities of the taskšAšAšAthe losses and gaps and misunderstandings that were embedded in my translations, as well as the moments of hybridity and discovery, where my own language layered over hers, hinging it open in strange ways and creating new meanings. meanings.
